

COURT HOUSE'S OFFICES MOVED FOR REMODELING

$105,000 Job Approved,
Work To Be Started Tomorrow

EMPLOYMENT FOR 300 MEN PROVIDED

Project Is To Be Completed by May 1,
Officials Say

Work on the remodeling of the Columbiana county courthouse at Lisbon was scheduled to start Tuesday as approval of the project, estimated at a cost of $105,000, was received today by County CWA Director E. M. Lowry from civil works authorities at Columbus.

300 To Be Employed Approximately 300 men will be provided employment on the project which is to be completed by May 1, county officials said.

General remodeling work will be done throughout the structure while an addition will be constructed on the rear of the building under plans arranged by C. F. Owsley, Youngstown architect.

No county money will be expended directly on the project, according to the announcement made from Lowry's office. A total of $95,000 will be expended for labor while $20,000 will be spent on materials. These amounts will be provided by the federal government.

The remaining $20,000 to be expended for general purposes, will be derived through the issuance of excise tax bonds by the county commissioners. The bonds are issued in anticipation of money to be apportioned the county by the state from the collection of taxes on cosmetics, beer and amusement tickets, officials explained.

LEAPS TO DEATH OUT OF WINDOW

Charles George, 42, Is Killed In Two-
Story Fall

Leaping head-first through a window of the second floor in a downtown apartment, Charles George, 42, of Salem, ended his own life here
Sunday afternoon.

George, a painter residing here for 15 years, is reported to have been despondent over ill health and the lack of steady employment.

Jumps Through Glass

He hurled himself through the glass in a window on the west side of the building located on the southeast corner of East State st. and South Ellsworth ave., where he resided.

Landing on his head on South
Ellsworth, George was instantly killed. He sustained a crushed skull, broken neck and body injuries.

Police Chief Ralph N. Stoffer today was conducting investigations into the man's past, reporting that a preliminary probe revealed the possibility that his correct name may be Frank Pettigrew.

He is believed to have come to this city from Youngstown and also is thought to have resided at other times in Braddock and New Kensington, Pa. He has always been known here as Charles George and was a member of Quaker City Aerie
No. 316, Fraternal Order of Eagles, under that name.

Seek U. S. Aid

Under the belief that he might have been a veteran of the World war, Stoffer today communicated with the federal department of Justice at Washington, D. C., for assistance in ascertaining his real identity. Fingerprints of the man were mailed to Washington today.

George is reported to have been in a highly nervous condition for several days and, according to police, attempted to end his life by slashing his wrists Friday night. He was watched carefully yesterday morning by other residents of the apartment building but, left alone for a few minutes, he ran across the room and hurled himself out the window.

The body was removed to the City hospital and later was taken to Stark Memorial. No arrangements for the funeral service have been completed pending the completion of the police investigation.

Reports that a sister of the dead man is residing in Braddock are being investigated by Stoffer.

McGee Appointed To Lisbon Position

LISBON, Feb. 19.—Louis McGee, for a decade, chief engineer at the R. Thomas & Sons porcelain plant here, has been appointed waterworks superintendent by the board of public affairs.

He succeeds to the vacancy recently created by the death of Henry Hollinger, who was water plant superintendent for the last 32 years. McGee took charge of the water department today.

Physician Dies

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19.—Dr. John D. O'Garra, 54, who had practiced medicine at Urbana for the last 31 years, died in a hospital here last night after an operation.

Above are views taken during the life of King Albert I of Belgium, who met death while enjoying his favorite sport of mountain climbing near Namur, Belgium. The photos show, top, left, King Albert as he appeared when crowned prince, holding his son, Leopold, who now is the new monarch; center, King Albert as a mountain climber in Switzerland; inset, Queen Elizabeth, and right, a recent portrait of King Albert. Below, left, is a picture of Albert entering Bruges at the head of his troops in 1918 as the German armies retreated; and right, King Albert and Queen Elizabeth are shown as they entertained the late President Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Wilson when the latter visited Europe in 1919. The king, one of the most popular monarchs in Europe, was 59.

With the death of the king, the new occupant of the Belgian throne is Leopold, 32, shown below with his wife, the former Princess Astrid of Sweden.

FIND BODY OF MURDERED GIRL

Victim Believed by Boston
Police to Have Been Beaten to Death

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—The body of Victoria David, 14, blood-covered and apparently murdered, was found this morning in a parking space in the South End, near Boston's Chinatown. The site is in the same general section of the city in which Ethel Zuckerman, school girl bakery employee was slain several weeks ago.

The David girl, who had not been seen since 9 o'clock yesterday morning, was reported missing by her family at 11 o'clock last night and the police were asked to search for her.

When the body was found this morning, her brother George was summoned and made identification.

The girl apparently had been dead several hours, the police said,
and they expressed the opinion that she had been beaten to death.

The mystery closely followed the unsolved and apparently motive-less slaying of Miss Zuckerman in a South End bakeshop which occurred while bakers and other employees were at work in another section of the bakery plant.

The parking space in which the David girl's body was found is located at Tyler and Kneeland sts., only a short distance from the girl's home at 76 Hudson st.

Just From Habit

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—How the police did chuckle. Although prohibition is over, two officers stopped an old-time bootlegging suspect for questioning. And just from habit, the Bluecoats say, he broke a bottle of lawful liquor on the pavement. So they arrested him on a charge of littering the street.

Six Are Injured In Two Accidents In Weekend Traffic

Six persons were injured in automobile accidents on highways near Salem over the weekend.

Four persons were hurt in the collision of autos owned by Robert White of Salem and Jack Barrele, Alliance, near Ellsworth Sunday morning while two East Palestine residents, a woman and her son were injured in an accident east of Columbiana yesterday afternoon.

P. C. Hawk, East Palestine, and Milwood Cook, East Liverpool, were drivers of machines in the latter crash.

Mrs. Hawk is in the City hospital here suffering from a fractured collared bone and broken shoulder blade, cuts and bruises, and her son,
Theodore, 27, also in the hospital,
sustained facial lacerations.

Hawk and Cook were unhurt. The accident occurred at the intersection of Routes 7 and 14.

White sustained facial lacerations and minor body bruises in the mishap near Ellsworth. Others hurt in the crash are: Raymond Moore, Frances Rakestraw, Katharine Polette and Jack Barrele, all of Alliance.

State highway patrolmen of the Salem office investigated both accidents.

Recital Planned At Public Library

A voice recital by students of J.
M. Henderson of Warren will be given at the assembly hall of the public library, East State st., at 8:15
p. m. Tuesday.

Fred Hutson and Zella Armstrong of Salem will be heard in vocal selections. Miss Junnia Jones, who will also play solos, will be the accompanied.

Shadron and George Mark will also participate in the program.
Mrs. James Hill and Miss Grace
P. Orr, Salem, will be the hostesses.

NRA ADOPTS NEW PRICE FORMULA

May Lead to Abandonment Eventually of Price-Fixing

By J. R. BRACKETT.
(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The NRA has created a new price formula, expected to lead to eventual abandonment of absolute price fixing.

It is designed to prevent sales below "reasonable cost." Officials of the recovery agency feel that if the plan proves successful it will make more arbitrary price-fixing unnecessary.

Hits Price-Cutting

The new scheme, as set forth in an official memorandum not yet released to the public, proposes a standard price provision for codes.
It would permit an industry to determine "reasonable" costs in an "emergency" where destructive price cutting might endanger the maintenance of a code.

It would tend in the future to permit price regulation only in emergencies, and officials said it indicated a general backing away from price tampering except in a few instances.

The new provision is recommended in all new codes, and may be adopted for old codes if the industry desires.

The new price formula was described as based on the idea of selecting the cost of plants of average efficiency as standard "reasonable cost" for an industry.

Boy Fatally Hurt Watching Kite Fly

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 19.— Three-year-old Robert Scholl had the measles and couldn't go out to play so his father made a kite and flew it outside his window to amuse him.

Robert watched eagerly from the upstairs—too eagerly. He leaned out and fell to the ground. He died shortly after of a broken neck.

Slashes Wrists, Vet Ends Own Life

EAST LIVERPOOL, Feb. 19.—
Columbiana County Coroner Ernest
R. Sturges will conduct an inquest here today over the body of Eugene L. Cornell, aged 45, pottery worker and World War veteran, who died last night, a few minutes after he slashed his wrists with a razor and then fought off physicians who attempted to save his life.

BELGIAN NATION MOURNS LOSS OF ITS HERO-KING

Albert I. Killed In 36-
Foot Fall, Mountain-
Climbing

PRINCE LEOPOLD
TO BE NEW RULER

Will Take Oath of Fidelity At Ceremonies Friday

BRUSSELS, Feb. 19.—Belgium mourned today her hero-king and prepared for the coronation of his sorrowing son.

Albert I. king of the Belgians and the commander-in-chief of their army, when ragged, ill-fed and suffering, it stood off the forces of Kaiser Wilhelm during the World war, was killed late Saturday in a fall while mountain climbing.

It was his favorite sport, and he was an expert, but a bit of frostbitten rock broke in his hand, and he plunged 36 feet to death.

Death Instantaneous

They found him where he had fallen, ten hours later. Death must have been instantaneous. At all events the 56-year-old king did not suffer. His skull was fractured.

With all the pomp of royal ceremony the state funeral of Albert I. will be held Thursday. Within 24 hours of the obsequies, Crown Prince Leopold will become, at the age of 32, the fourth king of the Belgians—Leopold III.

Prince Leopold and the princess were vacationing at Adelboden, Switzerland, when word of the king's death reached them. The prince, tired by a day of skiing, was sound asleep when there came a pounding at the door, urgently summoning him to the telephone.

It was thus, in Switzerland, that the young prince learned he must prepare to be king.

He went at once to the quarters of his consort, and broke to her the news. They started for Brussels immediately, arriving here early today.

The crown prince and princess,
the former Princess Astrid of Sweden, 28-years-old, hurried to the royal castle at suburban Laeken.

Like Queen Elizabeth, prostrated by grief, the prince and princess remained hidden today in the castle behind the guarded, gridded fence, while a throng milled soberly outside.

The first important ceremony
during the period of mourning, which will continue until after the funeral, will be removal of the body to the royal palace in Brussels tonight.

Escorted by War Veterans

The body will be borne on a caisson between solid walls of war veterans along the route through the city—war veterans who remember the great figure of a man six feet two inches tall who risked his life almost daily to be close to his soldiers during the trying days of the World war.

casion. Miss Morgan was the accompanied.

south of Leontonia. There will be an evening session at which a class will be initiated in the fifth degree. The work will be put on by

Body of Fugitive, Frozen, Discovered

EATON, O., Feb. 19.—Apparently having become exhausted and then frozen to death, the body of Everett Hall, 39, fugitive from the Dayton workhouse, was found beside a creek north of West Alexander.

Hall, who was serving out a $400 fine for chicken theft, and John Berger, escaped Feb. 10 after slugging a guard. Berger was captured the next day, 12 miles east of here.
The widow and a child of Hall
live in West Alexander.

Thomas Cope, 91, III At Home In Winona

Thomas Cope of Winona, is critically ill at his home and this morning little hope was entertained for his recovery.

his 92nd year. For the last few years he had been blind.

For a number of years Mr. Cope operated a farm in the Highland district, south of Salem. He has 14 years.

BROWN DENIES MAIL CONTRACT COLLUSION

Hoover's Postmaster General Tells Senate Probers
"Every Requirement of Law Was Observed"

ONLY 3 CONTRACTS LET DURING HIS TERM

Believes It "Inconceivable" President Would Sanction Cancellation of All Contracts

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Walter F. Brown, postmaster general in the Hoover administration, told senate investigators, headed by Hugo L.
Black, today that in awarding domestic air mail contracts "every requirement of law was observed and no evidence whatever of collusion between the bidders thereon or the holders of any other air mail contract appeared or was ever suggested by any one."

Appearing before the senate air mail investigating committee after charges that collusion and conspiracy had entered into the awards, Brown testified that only three out of 34 domestic contracts were let during his term of office.

Just prior to his voluntary appearance the former postmaster general issued a statement denying any wrong doing in awarding contracts and saying it was "inconceivable" that President Roosevelt, with all the facts before him would
"sanction such a colossal injustice"
as the cancellation of all contracts.

Nothing "Clandestine"
Brown said in another statement read to the committee there was nothing "clandestine" about the two meetings of air mail operators and post office officials here May 19 and June 4, 1933, at which Black has charged the air mail map was "divided up" and contracts let without competitive bidding.

"No suggestion of dividing air-mail operators among the compenies represented at these meetings was ever made or contemplated," Brown said, "and no agreement or understanding with respect to bidding on air mail contracts or refraining to bid on air mail contracts by any of the operators present was made at either of those meetings or at any other time."

All of the consolidations authorized by him, he said, were in the public interest and all resulted in improved service.

No Contract to P. R. R.
Brown said that his term as postmaster general was awarded by the Pen-sylvania railroad for carrying the mail. He said he owned 225 shares of Pennsylvania stock.

W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general in charge of air mail in the last administration, entered the hearing room with Brown.

Also present was Senator Fess D. (Ohio) who arranged for the appearance of Brown. The former post office department chief had promised to waive immunity and to permit anything he said to be used
"in any court in the land."

Night Jailer Roy Lewton on the head with a lead pipe and permaently injured John McMurline, Jr., of As-land, Ky., and Luther Hager, East Liverpool, to escape. The two were captured at East Liverpool the next day.

McMurline is still in the county jail awaiting commitment at Mansfield, where he is to serve a term for automobile stealing and also larceny.

Youngstown, sentenced for robbing the Golden Eagle store at Salem have also been taken to Mansfield

CHALLENGED

Quite apart from the discussion of the airmail situation in Washington is the army's preparation for taking over the responsibility of operating certain mail routes. It has been called on to perform a difficult task on short notice. Army efficiency has been challenged.

Unfortunately, test flights over two routes which army planes and men will cover resulted in accidents as last week closed. Three army aviators lost their lives. The country was given an excuse to say, if so inclined, that civilian pilots and private equipment seem to be more trustworthy than the men and planes of the national defense.

The inclination to make an unfavorable comparison is not strong. Common sense interferes to point out that assumption of the responsibility for covering thousands of miles necessarily carries with it a threat to safety. Pilots working for private interests have been victims of accidents frequently. When the army finds itself, its risk will be no greater than that of private companies which have spent years developing safety.

The basis of the subsidy practice in the postoffice department is encouragement of essential transportation services. Money made available to air transport companies for development of the science of aviation and the training of pilots was considered well spent. It was an indirect contribution to an adequate national defense.

For an indeterminate length of time that money will be used directly to enable army aviators to perform the same service. It is said that army officers are well pleased with the opportunity to show what they can do. The country will be pleased if the army's demonstration proves that constant expenditure of money for national defense has been used to develop the aviation arm sufficiently to match the performances of civilian pilots and planes.

THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW

Twelve years ago the house of representatives passed the Dyer anti-lynching bill by a vote of 231 to 119. The bill later was killed in the senate by a filibuster of southern senators, who opposed federal intervention in what they argued was a state problem. The Dyer bill differed little from the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill on which hearings will be held this week. Opposition to it will be based on the same arguments, presumably. The real question is on the point of the federal government's right to intervene in a state function.

There is less disposition now to question that right than there was a decade ago. Federal influence has been increased vastly. There remains, however, a question outside the law which must be answered before the Costigan-Wagner bill can be introduced.

Would it be effective in operation? A brief review of its provisions indicates the answer. It subjects to a fine of $5,000 or more or imprisonment up to five years, or both, any state or local official charged with protection of an individual who fails to make "all diligent efforts" to protect him from a mob. A similar penalty is provided for officials lax in their duties of arresting, jailing or prosecuting any member of a lynching mob.

The bill provides for a fine of $10,000 to be collected from any county in which a person is killed by a mob. In case the victim is seized in one county and murdered in another, each county is liable to fine. Also, it gives the federal court in which district mob violence occurs jurisdiction to try, under laws of the state concerned, members of a lynching mob if state officers are lax in prosecution or if jurors are opposed to punishment for a lynching.

These are sharp teeth in the Costigan-Wagner bill. But would they be effective in dealing with actual lynching incidents? Would counties pay their fines, would officials submit to trial, would federal court juries dispense better justice than state courts? In short, would a federal anti-lynching law be any more effective than state anti-lynching laws, which experience has shown to be powerless to prevent lynching and of questionable value in punishing lynchings? Hearings on the Costigan-Wagner bill may concert a skeptical attitude into a hopeful one, but it is doubtful.

THE STARS SAY

For Tuesday, February 20

The planetary configurations reacting with major force on the affairs of this day point to rather lively and interesting conditions, but attended by a series of tenacious obstacles, or stubbornly frustrating situations to be disposed of before real progress is attained. Minor change may be necessary, but all may thrive through means of letters, writings, publicity or promotions. There may be an incentive toward prodigality or expansiveness to be wisely handled.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a lively year with much opportunity for testing one's metal against stubborn obstacles, delays and tenaciously frustrating situations. Writings, publications or promotion should flourish, but it might be well to restrain impulses toward prodigality and "large ideas." A child born on this day may be versatile, broad-minded, keen of judgment, and may have an opportunity for coping with circumstances by such endowment. Notable nativity: Joseph Jefferson, actor.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Diary: Bettines and a note from Constance Collier; she misses the New York sunshine in London. Also came an original George Belcher crayon which Frank Crowninshield sent my lady and we hung it in the bedroom hall between etchings of Henry L. Doherty and a Morgan Dennis Scottie.

Working until twilight and through the town, meeting Lee O'Neil, the gazetteer, who told me as comical a tale of a clinkpot as ever I heard. Then came upon Walter Chrysler, Jr., and pretty Betty Shuster gazing into the shop windows. And idled with them a moment.

To dinner with the Messmore Kendalls and much high but stimulating nonsense. Home and to bed at 11 reading Elizabeth Cobb's "She Was a Lady!" a grand bit of fiction I did not put down until 4 a. m., wondering how one so young acquired such knowledge of life.

Every man who has incubated a setting of jitters trying to sleep in a strange town will understand this one. It was 3 a. m. and from the Hotel Astor emerged a sleepy-eyed pajamaed figure muffled in an overcoat. Proceeding to the middle of the car tracks he twisted a man-hole covering half around, waited to hear if passing cars resounded with the same clackety-clack. And when they didn't slouched back to the hotel.

A disillusioned and wealthy young man has left the Rialto flat after several experiments angling shows. He is Joseph V. Reed, whose love for the theater is keen but he found the chicanes in the stage world degrading, so he quit cold. The chiselers, however, only smile. They know there will be many more "reeds to be shaken by the winds."

Unseen radio audience proves far more terrifying than in-the-flesh audiences to even those accustomed to appearing in public. When Katharine Hepburn made her first broadcast recently her hands trembled so an announcer had to hold her manuscript. Merlín Aylesworth, who as head of a big broadcasting chain, knows microphone technique better than the average, has to fight off terror. And such old stagers as Amos 'n Andy have occasional flurries of fright. But most terrifying of all is to go on the air, turn a page and find the next one gone!

Personal nomination for the most beloved of the veteran newspapermen—Walter Trumbull.

Literary teas to "successful authors" are not touching off temperatures any more. It began to dawn upon the unsuspecting just what they were—a publisher's three-sheets-for-a-doubtful-scribbler. The writer of good books does not need such circus drawing room didoes to boost sales. Sinclair Lewis abhors them. As do Louis Bromfield, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Willa Cather and William McFee. And Ring Lardner never attended one in his all too short career.

They were young girls then but became matronly after 25 years and so far as I know are still there. There was one I remember startlingly reminding of Lotta Faust, whose decolete stage gowns uptown brought out all the first row rams of the era.

Prompt Care For Burns, Scalds

Many serious burns and scalds are caused by accidents of one sort and another. They may be from an overturned coffee pot, a leak in a steam radiator, or a curling iron. Any one of these accidents and others that might be mentioned may result in disfigurement or even worse if proper care is not given immediately.

Burning, as everybody knows, is caused by coming in contact with a hot object or the direct flame. Scalding is the result of similar contact with hot liquid or steam.

Even a hot water bottle may be a source of danger. If a person is paralyzed or unconscious, care must be taken when a hot water bottle is applied. If it is too hot the patient may be severely burned without showing any sign of pain.

Acids, lyes and other caustic substances, if carelessly handled, may cause burns. The ultimate effects are about the same as those produced by ordinary burns or scalds.

Six Classes of Burns

Burns may be divided into six classes. Those of the first degree merely redden the skin. In the second degree the skin becomes inflamed and blisters form. Third degree burns destroy some of the skin down to the underlying fat. In the fifth degree, the burn leaves the muscles exposed, and in the sixth degree the part is charred, or the whole part is burned away.

Ordinarily deep burns are not so painful as the superficial ones. The reason for this is that in the former not only are the layers of skin and fat destroyed, but also the nerve endings. In a deep burn, too, the recipient suffers shock and on this account is not sensitive to pain. This is unfortunate because if the person can no longer feel pain he is apt to remain in contact with the hot object for a longer period of time. In consequence, fifth or sixth degree burns may result.

First degree burns, strange to say, are sometimes more dangerous than deep burns. This is because they usually cover a large area. If a half or two-thirds of the body is burned in this way there is a good deal of shock and in consequence the organs of the body fail to function properly.

In such cases the skin is not able to eliminate the secretions that are normally thrown off by the sweat glands. This makes demand upon the kidneys and causes them to excrete more so that they may become inflamed.

The poisons collected from any burned area are passed through the system. The result is that in a short time the liver, kidneys, or lungs may become severely or fatally infected. In many cases of severe burns, too, pneumonia may be one of the effects.

How To Treat Burns

The treatment of burns varies slightly with the extent and type of burn. In burns of the first degree such local applications as baking soda, butter or cold cream give relief. If the burn is extensive, sterile gauze soaked in salt solution or a solution of boric acid helps to relieve pain.

Acid burns are counteracted by solutions of baking soda or ammonia water. Burns caused by strong lye or ammonia are best treated by washing the damaged area with vinegar or lemon juice.

If the burn is severe, or if the pain cannot be relieved by simple remedies, by all means call the doctor. He may save the patient from a severe illness which might even be fatal.

SQUANDERING FUNDS

Editor, The News: About one year ago, the newspapers of the country were full of interviews as to how the president was going to "cast the money" changes out of their temples of greed and corrupt practices, and in line with that promise certain investigations were prosecuted with the supposed idea of unearthing corrupt practices and evasions in reference to tax matters on the part of the aforementioned money changers.

These investigations waxed quite warm for a time and the administration reaped a harvest of publicity by reason of it, and the investigation has cost the taxpayers a considerable sum of money. What are the net results to date?

Instead of throwing the money-changers out of their temple, it develops that they are entirely within in their rights as the laws were enacted by our congress, that congress either by design, oversight, carelessness or ignorance (the investigation did not develop which), left certain loop holes or jokers in the law that apparently were just the proper size and shape for the so-called money-changers to take advantage of, and as congress is carrying on this investigation, they would not be interested in developing why the loop holes were incorporated in the law, or they may already know why. At any rate the money-changers are still on their thrones.

The foregoing is merely an introduction to the thought which I now will try to convey to you.

Investigations are all right in their way, but most investigations are similar to locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen. What I suggest is that investigations be started in advance, before the horse is stolen.

The investigation which is crying to be started now and before it is too late, is with regard to our treasury paying out millions of dollars in buying gold at 40% above what it is worth. Call in those same money-changers and find out why so much gold is being dumped on us and they will tell you because Uncle Sam is offering more than the gold is worth.

If I pay $200 for a horse that is worth only $100, I stand to lose money on the deal.

I am here to say that the secretary of the treasury, if he were buying gold with his own money, would not offer $35 an ounce for it until he had at least tried to buy it for $25 per ounce. If he did, he is not a safe man to be in charge of anybody's funds.

As a citizen and taxpayer, I am interested in knowing that the funds of the treasury are not being squandered and much good it will do to investigate four or five years hence, and find that someone was mistaken in judgment, that his intentions were good, but that he was ill-advised and as a result lost 40 cents on every dollar of gold purchased, and at the rate of one hundred million dollars a week, which the papers indicate is being delivered, this means (if I am correct), forty million loss to our government every week, so long as this practice lasts.

This would be more expensive than the loop holes in the tax laws.

"I TAKE THIS WOMAN"

Synopsis

Young and beautiful Stanley Paige loses her fortune through market speculation but a hard-blow comes when her fiancé, the fascinating, irresponsible, Drew Armistage... tells her it would be madness to marry on his income and leaves town. Penniless and broken-hearted, Stanley refuses to seek aid from her wealthy friends. Desiring to make her own way, Stanley drops out of her exclusive circle and rents a cheap furnished room. After a week of loneliness and trying to adapt herself to her poor surroundings, Stanley calls on Nigel Scott, one of her society friends, and asks his aid in securing a position. Nigel urges her to marry the handsome and wealthy young lawyer, Perry Deterest, who has loved her devotedly for years, but Stanley's heart is with Drew. Nigel suggests that she think it over, then, if she still wants a position, he will try to place her.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Stanley had been sitting for a long time on the park bench. There had been children in the Square when she first came, and families eating ice-cream cones and people waiting for busses, and more people sitting, reading the evening papers. But now it was quite dark and the children had gone home and the people had taken the busses and there was no longer any daylight to read by.

Here and there through the Square lovers sat close together, their arms and hands touching; here and there people who were no longer lovers sat and slept—or just sat, too tired to go home.

It was hot and still—with the heat hanging languidly, as it does when it is very dark and there is no wind and no promise of rain. Even in the darkness one knew that the trees and grass were seared; that the painted benches were blistered, that everywhere dust lay thick and dry and motionless.

Stanley sat motionless, too, her hands folded one over the other. She had taken a bath, and dressed, and gone out to the corner drug store and climbed up on a high stool beside a fat, cheerful perspiring man, who was eating a hamburger sandwich and a mildly pretty little girl who was consuming a chocolate ice-cream soda. She had ordered food but the sight of the wilted lettuce and slice of over-ripe tomato had been too much for an already sick appetite and so she had slid off the stool and come here, Valerie had gone out with Jimmy Hunter—they had asked her to go along—now she wished that she had—but it had been so hot and she had been so tired.

Sitting here now in the dark, she went wearily over the four days which had passed since her afternoon at Nigel's. The relaxed mood in which she had left his studio had deserted her within a few hours and she had known almost at once that she would not go back or telephone to him. She tried to explain it to Valerie. "It's like this, Val—if I let him help me, get me this place in the art shop, it would mean that I would be seeing all of them again—Nigel, Dennis St. John, Perry, of course. I don't want to do that. I don't know why, exactly, but I don't. I'd rather find something for myself, work things out alone."

So each day since she had walked several miles in answer to advertisements Valerie marked the night before in the evening paper. Assistant in a beauty parlor, hostess in a tea room, attendant in a doctor's office, part-time governess for two English children, demonstrator for a new brand of coffee, filling clerk in a large department store—and each time she arrived too late or was turned away because of lack of experience or references.

Valerie was persistently optimistic. "Something is sure to turn up, but you've got to be patient. Don't expect to get it this week, or maybe next."

Stanley felt things would be infinitely easier when she had work to do. When one is physically tired out, one has to sleep. Between work and sleep she hoped to get through the next few months—beyond that she refused to go.

Every bit of her ached for Drew. She felt that if he had been in New York, she would have gone to him and begged him to come back to her. But he was not in New York. He was in Chicago. And in her heart she thanked God that this was so, and at the same time prayed that he might return, that he might speak to her over the telephone, that she might meet him in the street. Every tall, swinging figure seen at a distance robbed her of her breath and she sorted over the scanty mail on the hall table with trembling fingers.

But Drew did not come and he did not write and in her innermost soul she knew that this was good but her heart hungered for him—piteously, rebelliously, unceasingly. Even in her sleep she was never without a troubled consciousness of him—the ripple of hard muscle in his lean arms, the slanting planes of his dark cheeks, the husky note in his voice when he made love to her. She wondered if these things would ever dim, grow vague, fade away, if she would ever be able to push him into some dark, far corner of her mind, if he would ever become less a painfully distinct reality and more a half-forgotten memory. She thought not.

So intent was she upon her own thoughts that she was startled when out of the hot darkness someone spoke to her.

"Excuse me, but you've been sitting here an awful long time and so have I. If you don't want me to talk to you, I won't but if you don't mind, I'd like to."

She looked up abruptly, noticed for the first time that she was not the sole occupant of the bench. In the darkness it was hard to tell much about him, except that he was young and thin and had a nice, rather shyly expectant sort of voice.

"Why, no," she said slowly, frowning a little. "I don't mind. Especially, if you are willing to do the talking."

"Gosh, that's nice of you." He leaned toward her now and she saw his face quite clearly. It looked ridiculously relieved. "You know, you might have called a cop or something. I suppose I took a rather long chance, speaking to you, like that."

She considered him with amused, and suddenly interested eyes. There was something very young and pleasantly naive about this awkward young man who had an idea that girls spoken to in parks called cops to rescue them. She wondered a bit wearily why she was going to bother to be nice to him and knew that she was. Decided it was because she welcomed any diversion to her own thoughts.

She told him so. She said: "I didn't like what I was thinking about, but I couldn't seem to stop."

"I know." He bent his head to her eagerly, spoke impulsively, his words tumbling over one another in quick confusion. "That's what comes of being alone too much, don't you think? You get all tangled up in your own thoughts and they're not always good company. But what can you do about it? Nothing."

"I guess you're right," she laughed a bit ruefully, glancing up at him sideways, liking the line of his profile beneath the pulled-down brim of his hat.

"I know I'm right. I've been alone for three months now—and well, it's made me desperate enough to speak to you anyhow."

"Did that take—so much courage?"

He laughed shortly. "It certainly did. You see I'm not the sort that picks up girls easily. I've always been clumsy about things like that—I still am!"

"Ingenious, perhaps, but I wouldn't say clumsy. There's something nicely unexpected about you, I think I like it." Stanley spoke musingly, considering him with grave eyes.

"Then, I'm glad I'm like that."

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-EIGHT army planes are to carry the mails, with more to come. Army pilots will do the work, not any better than the highly trained air mail pilots, but just as well. It is to be hoped that army air mail pilots will be well paid, at least as well as the commercial pilots, and that as many of the latter as care to do so will find employment in the army air mail service, with pay as good as that which they had received or better.

THIS use of army planes and flyers for carrying mails, made necessary by the conviction of President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley that private air mail contracts have been vitiated by fraud may prove of great value to this country.

It might result in building up a real U. S. air force, every army mail plane adapted to instant fighting use in case of war, high speed fast mail planes for pursuit, heavy parcel post and passenger carrying planes to use as bombers.

The United States government air mail might well create a commercial air force of 5,000 or more planes, that could instantaneously be changed into a fighting air fleet, invincible.

ALL KINDS of flyers, all kinds of planes will be used in the army's air mail experiment.

The first 118 planes selected to carry the mail will include 36 attack, 14 bombardment, 67 observation, 30 pursuit and one transport plane.

BEFORE long, of course, there will be so many Americans flying on their own account, with private planes adapted to fighting uses, that for anybody to attack the United States by air would be as foolish as for a door mouse to climb up a tree and attack a yellow jacket's nest.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT means to do something about the sugar problem which disturbs the world from Utah to the gulf states, from Asia to Cuba via Hawaii and Porto Rico.

An attempt will be made to allot to each sugar-producing territory its rightful share of the United States sugar market. We cannot or do not here grow any but a small part of the sugar this country needs, and must rely on other countries, particularly on Cuba, so important, in case of war because of its nearness to our shores. It seems fair to protect the producing countries from disastrous over-production and competition by allotting to each a share of our market.

Garbo Is Brilliant As "Queen Christina" In State's Offering

GARBO returns to the screen from a visit to her native Sweden in a role she picked herself—that of "Queen Christina." It marks a definite period of advance in her career as an actress. Here is a mellower, a more adult and glamorous Garbo (they've dropped the Greta, she's just Garbo now, like Bernhardt) who has banished any mannerisms of voice that she might have had.

A Great Actress
Regardless of all the more recent actresses who have been named as successors of Garbo, she has returned to the screen after a year's absence apparently more secure and brilliant than when she left it.

The film, as a story, is frankly romanticized. It purports to tell the life story of this Swedish queen, who, at her disappointed father's request (he had wanted a male heir) was reared as a boy. How she arose to national power; how she nearly disrupted the country with her financial eccentricities; how she ended the 30 years war because she "wanted peace and peace she would have," and how she tossed away the crown at the age of 25 are related with picturesque fidelity. Perhaps Christina never actually fell in love with a man and gave up the throne that she might go with him to Spain, but some little deviation from historical accuracy doesn't harm the picture.

A Queen in Love
The moment that Garbo comes on the screen history takes a back seat and she becomes Christina, an unhappy woman who could see no reason why she should not lead her own life as she desired. When she wears the velvet trousers and large trimmed hat of a Swedish king she is all masculine as they want her to be. The way she takes off her hat, the way she bows, her walk—all are masculine but when she dons the lovely robes of the queen she is all feminine and a woman in love.

Finally, when she goes to meet the man she loves, only to find the greatest tragedy in her life, she shows the strong power of the person she has been brought up to be. And, in that final close up, the longest in screen history, when she stands at the helm of the ship as it heads toward Spain, her face is truly wonderful.

GRETA GARBO

OIL COMPANY TO OPEN CAMPAIGN

Will Distribute Books With Practical Advice For Drivers

The first newspaper advertisement in a spring advertising campaign, which officials of the Pure Oil company announce as the largest in its history—an expression of their confidence in the return of better business conditions—appears today.

A special feature of this campaign is an expense record book, which will be offered to every interested motorist through the newspapers. This book includes not only space for the recording of all car expenditures throughout the year, but also 20 pages of practical advice to the motorist.

"We know the public is interested in the facts," comments H. L. Ramsey, district manager in the Columbianna territory. "How many people know, for example, that ten cold motor startings use up as much gasoline as four miles of ordinary driving? Or that the temperature in the combustion chambers frequently reaches 2500 degrees? This fact explains why heat resisting motor oils are so vitally important."

"And do motorists know that their batteries deliver only 50 per cent off their capacity in cold weather, or that driving at 30 miles per hour is several times more economical than at 60? Have they any idea how easily their cars may be ruined by incorrect lubricants in their spring shackles, or their free wheeling units—not to say any part of their cars? Have they ever stopped to figure out how much they are paying in state and government gasoline taxes?"

"Because the car owner does not generally think of these matters, and because he will benefit by this knowledge, we have sent out hundreds of thousands of expense record books."

Nurses' Milk Fund, for Youngsters, Swelled As 400 Dance At Elks Home

Helping in the humanitarian work of providing milk for needy children of the city, approximately 400 attended the Salem City hospital Saturday night at the Elks home, East State st.

For some time, the nurses have been assisting in giving youngsters of the city the milk necessary for their proper nourishment which otherwise they may not have. Funds are necessary to procure the milk and the dance Saturday was one means of raising money so essential to the project.

Varied Program Given
A varied program of entertainment was carried out. Johnny Ecker's orchestra of Canton played for the dancing, with songs by Eileen McCauley of Canton interspersed among the dance selections.

In addition, a number of talented performers from Bettie Lee Kenneweg's studio of dancing contributed a diversified floor show.

Leading off the program, little Lou Jean McNeelan performed in a song and tap number to the tune of "My Baby Made a Cry Baby Out of Me," and, accompanied by appropriate gestures, the song proved a hit.

A song and a toe dance by Elaine McShee was well received. The dance, marked by snap and spirit, was accompanied by the strains of "The Doll Dance."

Marked by an abundance of ease and grace, an Indian acrobatic dance was given by Elden Gibbons, one of the older students, which proved popular with the big audience.

Great Salem High Quintet Conquers Scienceville Five, 31-20

LOUISVILLE WINS TRI-COUNTY CAGE CROWN--LIVERPOOL TRIUMPHS

FINE PASSWORK OF QUAKERS FEATURES THRILLING CONTEST

Flashing a sparkling pass attack that completely outclassed their foe in opening periods of play, Salem High varsity basketballers crashed their way further into state-wide fame as they soundly trounced Scienceville High of Youngstown, 31-20, in a thrilling battle here Saturday night.

Forging out in front, 8-3, in the first period and by a big 20-6 margin at the half, the Quakers played their finest game of the year to hand the 1933 Northeastern Ohio champions their worst defeat in three years. It was the visitors' second setback in 15 games and Salem's twelfth triumph in 15 starts.

Quakers Play Sensationally

Seldom in recent campaigns has a Salem High quintet presented such a versatile attack as that combination which Coach Herb Brown tossed into the fray against the Youngstowners. The team excelled in long and short shots, displayed an astounding aerial onslaught that enabled them to keep possession of the leather through 65 per cent of the contest and were pressed only in late quarters as the invaders started a rally of their own and displayed why they are ranked among Ohio's greatest floor combiners.

While Salem held a fairly decisive advantage through most of the fracas there was never a dull moment and throngs of cheering Salinites, wildly enthused over their team's fine performance, jumped from their seats onto the floor in jubilant celebrations.

Jackie Mullins, tiny forward who played so brilliantly against Alliance Friday night and earned his place in the first two minutes of the fray as the Quakers took the ball after the center tip-off and hurried it back and forth awfully, for an opportunity to work it under the hoop. McCloskey, fouled by DaBacco, missed the free throw, but Sidinger took the ball from the backboard, heaved it to Mullins and after a series of short tosses, Sidinger zoomed the leather through to Pukalski who scored from short range. A second later Kaercher scored one out of two free throws, then McCloskey tossed in a charity toss and Salem led 4-0, before Scienceville really had gotten hold of the ball.

Salem Takes Big Lead

The spectacular pass attack that was to lead the Salem team to the great victory was brought to the fore in the first two minutes of the fray as the Quakers took the ball after the center tip-off and hurried it back and forth awfully, for an opportunity to work it under the hoop. McCloskey, fouled by DaBacco, missed the free throw, but Sidinger took the ball from the backboard, heaved it to Mullins and after a series of short tosses, Sidinger zoomed the leather through to Pukalski who scored from short range. A second later Kaercher scored one out of two free throws, then McCloskey tossed in a charity toss and Salem led 4-0, before Scienceville really had gotten hold of the ball.

Longstreth finally intercepted a Salem pass and stood far in the back court to tally the invaders' first points. McCloskey, however, duplicated his feat then Noble, fouled by Sidinger, made good the free throw. Pukalski, taking a perfect pass from Kaercher, tallied an easy under-basket shot and Salem held a five-point lead as the period ended.

Butler replaced Basch for Scienceville as the second period opened with Pukalski scoring his third field goal, a beauty from the side. Butler registered a long shot but Mullins, grabbing a toss from Sidinger, dribbled through the foe's defense and tallied a fielder for Salem. McCloskey and Pukalski each scored from action as Scienceville was unable to do a thing against the smooth-functioning Salem pass attack while, two more baskets, tallied by Mullins and Pukalski in the last minute of play in the half, pulled Salem out in front, 20 to 6.

Scienceville Rallies

Dazzled by the sensational performance of the Brownmen but never once giving up the fight, the invaders held a big edge over Salem in the early part of the third period as DaBacco, one of the district's most accurate marksmen, tossed in

Close Battle Turns Into Rout As Salem Five Finishes Strong

What started out as a close and interesting battle developed into a one-sided affair as Salem reserves finished strong to trounce Youngstown Scienceville, 22-13, in the town Scienceville game Saturday night.

The teams battled on even terms in the first half with Salem leading 8 to 7, but the home-owners rallied brilliantly to take a 14-7 advantage in the third quarter when the visitors were held scoreless.

GOSHEN QUINTET LOSE, 20-19, IN CLASS B EVENT

Berlin Center Five Eliminates Damascus From Mahoning Tourney

The battle for Class B championship honors of Mahoning county reached its semi-final stage as Greenford, Lowellville, Berlin Center and Poland triumphed in second round encounters at Boardman High gymnasium Saturday night.

Berlin Center survived play in the second round by gaining a 20-19 verdict over Goshen tilters of Damascus in one of the thrillers of Saturday night's play, while Greenford earned the right to ranking as one of the big title threats with a 31-16 victory over North Lima.

Lowellville, seeded No. 1 team in the tourney, won over Austintown Fitch, 35-22, and Poland came through with a 33-29 decision over Canfield.

Lowellville had little difficulty in polishing off the Fitch contingent, but there were thrills galore in the Goshen-Berlin fray which was close from start to finish and ended with Liana sinking a long shot from the center of the court to win for the Berlin lads.

Mike Pusek's dope-upsetting Canfield team started off strong and appeared enroute to their second surprise victory, but Poland rallied to win out in the fourth period.

Greenford flashed superiority in every department of play in the game against North Lima. Coach White used two full teams with the Hendricks brothers and Brudely playing outstanding games.

The semi-final games will be played Thursday night with Poland facing Greenford at 8:30 while Lowellville will tackle Berlin Center at 9:30.

LEGAL NOTICE
I, J. J. FULTON, State Superintendent of Banks in charge of the liquidation of the Citizens Savings Bank of Salem, Ohio, Plaintiff, vs. Claudia McCown et al. Defendants. Case No. 21773.
Claudia McCown, whose last known address was 1942 Maryland Avenue, New Castle, Pa., will take notice that on the 3rd day of February, 1934, the undersigned, J. J. Fulton, State Superintendent of Banks in charge of the liquidation of the Citizens Savings Bank of Salem, Ohio, filed his Petition in the Court of Common Pleas of Columbiana County, Ohio, in case No. 21773, alleging that the defendants above named have, or claim to have, an interest in the following described real estate, to-wit:
Situated in the City of Salem, County of Columbiana and State of Ohio, and known as lot No. 1 in A. Q. Casper's Addition of lots to the city of Salem, County of Columbiana and State of Ohio. Said lot having a frontage of 52 1/2 feet on the South side of East High street and depth of 158 feet. The plat of said addition is recorded in Plat Book No. 4 page 79 of the record of plats of Columbiana County, Ohio, and being the same premises conveyed to this grantor by deed dated Aug. 12, 1924. Be the same more or less, but subject to all legal high-ways.
Further known as Door No. 1195 East Third Street, Salem, Ohio.
The petition further alleges that by reason of the default of the defendant, obligor, and the payment of promissory note according to its tenor, the conditions of a concurrent mortgage deed given to secure the payment of said note and conveying the premises above described, have been broken and the same has become absolute.
The prayer of the petition is for the foreclosure of plaintiff's mortgage, for the marshalling of liens and the sale of said premises, and the proceeds applied to the payment of said lien in the proper order of their priority; that the defendants named above be required to answer and set forth their respective interests in said premises or be forever barred from asserting the same, and for such other and further relief as is just and equitable.
The defendants above named are required to answer on or before the 31st day of March, A. D. 1934.
I, J. J. FULTON, State Superintendent of Banks in charge of the liquidation of the Citizens Savings Bank, Salem, Ohio.

PIERPONT FIRST TO FACE COURT

Looms As No. 1 Man In State Case Against Dillinger Gang

(By Associated Press)

LIMA, O., Feb. 19.—Harry Pierpont, whose trial on a charge of first degree murder in the slaying of Sheriff Jess Sarber will start two weeks from tomorrow, today appeared to be the "number one" man in the state's case against three Dillinger gangsters.

Of the three members of the mob held in the heavily guarded Allen county jail, he will be the first to be tried. Russell Clark's trial has been set for March 12, and Mackley's trial for March 19.

Pierpont was the only one of the three to recognize two members of the Tucson, Ariz., police department who called at the jail yesterday to see the three men they helped capture, along with John Dillinger himself, in Tucson.

County Prosecutor E. M. Botkin declares he has a signed statement from Edward Shouse, a minor Dillinger henchman, in which Pierpont is described as the real leader of the gang, rather than Dillinger. Shouse will be brought here from Indiana to testify against his former pals, Botkin said.

Court News

Divorce Actions

Minetta Graham has filed a divorce action in common pleas court against her husband, Dwight Graham, residing south of Letonia on the Letonia-Columbiana rd. The couple was married at Letonia Sept. 14, 1928, and the grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty are set up against Graham.

In addition to a decree, the plaintiff asks the court to restore her maiden name, Minetta McLaughlin.

Joseph Kenney has been ordered to show cause before Judge W. F. Lones March 5 why he should not be punished for contempt of court. His former wife, Alberta Kenney, obtained a divorce from him Dec. 17, 1931, and it is held that a court order issued at that time against the defendant is in default.
